

ONE PRISONER DIES OF WOUNDS

Nathan Rosen, one of the 14 prisoners injured by guards in the quelling of the mutiny of 150 convicts at the state penitentiary last Monday afternoon, died at the Columbia hospital at 7:30 o'clock last night.

The inquest will be held this afternoon at the penitentiary, both prisoners and officers being called to testify. This is, as far as is known, the first instance of the holding of an inquiry into a man's death behind the state prison walls.

His death was caused by hurts received when the penitentiary guards, reinforced by state, county and city officers, fired upon the prisoners lined up in front of the chair factory, which is operated by prison labor within the penitentiary walls. The prisoners, according to the penitentiary officials, had armed themselves with bricks, sticks and knives and were advancing upon the score or more officers when the guards opened fire, 13 prisoners being injured by bullets. Another prisoner was hit over the head with a can by an officer while Penitentiary Guard Gillette was injured in the arm by a flying missile.

Rosen was struck by only one bullet, apparently from a rifle. This bullet pierced the abdomen, perforating the intestines in five places. With the other injured, Rosen was given first aid treatment at the penitentiary infirmary by Dr. R. T. Jennings, prison physician, who happened to be in the prison grounds when the outbreak occurred. Considering the prisoner's wounds serious, Dr. Jennings shortly after order was restored transferred Rosen to the Columbia hospital where an operation was performed Monday afternoon in an effort to save the convict's life. All efforts of physicians proved in vain, however, and Rosen as the days passed gradually weakened, dying last night.

Rosen entered the penitentiary July, 1921, to begin the serving of an 15 months' sentence following his conviction on a charge of forgery in Kershaw county. His sentence, therefore, would not have been completed until February, 1922.—The State.

The great banker lay on his death bed. Many of his friends were gathered about his bedside to be with him at last. The attending physician whispered to the group: "I fear he is nearing the great divide."

"Tell them not to divide until I get there," whispered the dying banker.—Forbes Magazine (N. Y.).

ARGUMENTS BEGIN IN FORGERY CASE

Aiken, May 12.—The court house was crowded again today when the case of the Farmers and Merchants' bank of Aiken against young Milton L. Lyle, charged with uttering a forged check on their bank January 12, was resumed.

James C. Westbury was the first to go on the stand in defense of himself and also of Lyle, who is indicted here on three counts of forgery; that of the Farmers and Merchants' bank the First National bank and the Bank of Western Carolina.

The witness testified that he lived in Dade county, Georgia, about four miles from Lookout mountain. He had known Lyle since 1909. He was a nephew of his wife. He further stated that the boy had been with him almost continuously since 1917. Wherever he went to work Lyle went with him. He went thoroughly into the history of Lyle's life. They came to Hepzibah on the construction work December 8, 1921. He claimed that on November 23, when it is charged by Young Hemmett, a cashier at LaGrange, Ga., that Lyle operated in his bank, that Lyle was with him at his home.

Practically everything sworn to yesterday by J. E. Straun, depot agent at Wildwood, where Westbury lives, was again brought out in regard to freight being delivered to them and that Lyle had hauled it. Mrs. Westbury swore to this also yesterday. Westbury also denied the testimony of Mrs. L. S. Bray, a cashier of Athens, Ga., that Lyle was in her bank on December 31. He claimed that Lyle was at work with him. He denied positively that he (Westbury) had ever been to Aiken (previous to the time he was brought here as a prisoner. A diploma belonging to Milton Lyle for a course as automobile mechanic in a Nashville concern in July, 1921, was put in as evidence.

A great deal was brought out in the cross-examination and Lyles were paid by the month or just time. Westbury agreed that it was by the month, and if any days were lost from rain they were not docked. S. M. Faggett was his accountant. Westbury denied that Mr. Faggett had said in the barracks in Augusta on Sunday, January 15, that they (he and his wife, Westbury and Lyle) had just come up to Augusta for the week-end.

Milton Lyle then took the stand and was questioned by both defense and state nearly an hour. He was steady and his youth is very apparent. He said he was a posthumous child, his father having died in July, 1900, and he was born September, 1900.

He went over his life's history. He said he was raised in Dade county, Georgia, and knew nothing about cotton. He had never raised it and knew nothing about raising or selling it and knew nothing of banks or banking. He said his schooling had been limited. The defense tried to prove that he was not capable of fleeing banks, etc.

Rialto Theater Sunday

The young people are urged to bring their parents with them and as this is "Mothers' Day" these services will be in observance of this special day. A male quartet is being arranged from among several of our business men and the O'Shields string band has offered their services. The music and singing at these services will be worth while hearing and the public is invited to attend.

Adjutant Davis.

Human Vanity

Ostrich feather fans, priced in one New York establishment at $150, may be had at another place only a few blocks away for $30. The fans are bought at identical prices in the same wholesale establishment. Because of human vanity, the proprietor of a store which sells to one class of people would no more dare to charge too little than another would dare to charge too much. The woman who pays $30 for a feather fan in an unimportant shop might not be willing to pay much more than that; but the woman who deliberately goes to the most expensive store in town might feel only contempt for the establishment if she found luxury articles there priced within the pocketbook range of the masses.—Fred Kelly in The Nation's Business.

Increase in Price of Gas Investigated

Washington, May 13.—The investigation of the recent increase in the price of gasoline is proposed in a resolution by Senator McKellar, of Tennessee.

TWO AWAITING TRIAL TUESDAY

Yesterday brought Frank M. Jeffords, Ira Harrison and Glenn Treece one day nearer trial on charges of the murder of J. C. Arnette, but revealed little new concerning the killing or the trial. The three men are still being held at the state penitentiary pending trial.

The three men were indicted together on a charge of murder and will therefore presumably face trial together when the case is called at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Neither Solicitor A. Fletcher Spigner nor the attorneys for the three defendants have made announcement as to plans for the trial to be followed by either the prosecution or the defense. The case for the prosecution, however, will be based largely upon the alleged confessions, which officers say, were made to county and city officers after the trio's arrest Wednesday morning, though it is possible that one or more of the three may be called to the stand. The state's case will also be based in part on the circumstantial evidence of the blood stained clothing, the insurance policies and the fire in the filling station.

The three men will all be defended by attorneys appointed by the court since none of the defendants had secured counsel. R. Beverly Herbert and William S. Nelson were named yesterday morning as counsel for Glenn Treece by Judge Townsend while John Hughes Cooper was appointed yesterday by the court as attorney for Ira Harrison. Judge Townsend named James Hammond and John Quinn as attorneys for Frank M. Jeffords at the arraignment of the trio Thursday afternoon.

A portion of the blood found upon the clothing of the men was sent to the city chemist, Boyden Nims, for analysis and his report, holding the stains to be human blood, was received by S. S. Shorter, city chief of detectives, yesterday. This written report will be given the solicitor for use, if desired, in the preparation of the case against the trio. Both Jeffords' and Harrison's coats showed these blood stains, officers say. The overall, which Treece told officers, they say, that he had worn at the time of the killing, show no signs of blood and Treece, according to Sheriff T. Alex Heise, told officers that he was careful to sit in the back seat of the automobile, when the body of the slain man was carried from the filling station to the Kirkland avenue bridge where it was found a few minutes later by six national guardsmen.—The State.

Does This Apply to You?

Spencer is quoted as saying that imitation in dress may be due to reverence for the one imitated or a desire to show equality with him. We may try to dress like a certain man because we admire him, or because we dislike him—to show the world that we can have any kind of clothes that he can have. The average man does not like to wear a dress suit. Yet he does not care to be without one, lest people think he is not as good as others who wear them. Many business practices are doubtless due to the same reason—our desire to show a competitor that we are just as good as he is.—The Nation's Business.

SCHOOLS RECEIVE FEDERAL MONEY

The office of the state superintendent of education paid out yesterday state and federal aid for the teaching of agriculture to the amount of $66,003.36 to 94 different schools in 30 counties, according to information given out at the office.

Under the plan adopted by the state board of education, 50 per cent of the teacher's salary is paid from federal funds, 25 per cent from state funds and 25 per cent from local funds. In some districts local trustees increase the salary by adding more to the amount paid locally, it was said.

"The enrollment for this year was 2,658 students," J. E. Swearingen, state superintendent of education, said. "Besides the class work each pupil conducts some project work at his home under the supervision of the teacher. This year the pupils of the state are cultivating 1,946.36 acres of field, truck and garden crops. They are also caring for 70 cows, 408 hogs and 4,604 chickens under the supervision of the agricultural teachers. The value of products produced by agricultural pupils last year was $66,448.

"Inquiries for aid for many new schools for next year are coming into the office. These inquiries concerning agricultural teachers for another year should be made to Verd Peterson, state supervisor of agriculture, state department of education, Columbia."

Following is a list of the 30 counties receiving aid this year and the amount given to each county:

Abbeville, $240; Aiken, $240; Allendale, $240; Aiken, $1,125; Anderson, $3,114.38; Barnwell, $1,000; Berkeley, $446.25; Chesterfield, $1,503.75; Darlington, $3,953.75; Dillon, $2,876.25; Dorchester, $794.40; Edgefield, $937.50; Fairfield, $180; Florence, $3,681.24; Greenville, $4,591.25; Greenwood, $240; Hampton, $1,950; Jasper, $240; Lancaster, $1,537.70; Laurens, $2,756.25; Lexington, $2,448.44; Marion, $2,448.44; Marlboro, $2,300; Newberry, $955; Oconee, $2,300; Orangeburg, $4,485.25; Pickens, $2,025.40; Richland, $3,682.50; Spartanburg, $4,325.75; Union, $240; Williamsburg, $2,475.

Bristol, Va., May 13.—The receding waters of Beaver Creek, which overflowed last night left debris strewn in the streets and water-filled cellars in the business section today. ## LETTERS FEATURE STILLMAN CASE

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 12.—The hearing of testimony in the Stillman divorce case closed with a sensation today when a detective hired by James A. Stillman, New York banker and plaintiff, testified that he and Outbridge Horsey, one of Mr. Stillman's lawyers, had paid $15,000 to Fred Beauvais, Indian guide named as co-respondent, for four letters alleged to have been written to Beauvais by Mrs. Anne U. Stillman.

The purchase of the letters from Beauvais, who, Mr. Stillman contends, is the father of three-year-old Guy Stillman, was made in Montreal last week, the detective, Edmund Leigh, said. It was arranged through James Shean, a New York newspaper man, Leigh explained.

The letters, replete with terms of endearment and such expressions as "I love every pore of your skin" and "when can we get married?" were accepted in evidence after Mrs. Stillman had denied ever having written them. She swore the handwriting was not her own, but Harriet Hibbard, housekeeper for Mr. Stillman, looked at them and then said that to the best of her recollection the handwriting was Mrs. Stillman's.

Beauvais demanded $25,000 for the letters, Leigh testified, but after several days of negotiations he accepted $15,000. He described dramatic scenes with the guide and Shean and said he promised Beauvais that he would say the letters were among those stolen some time ago when a packet kept by the guide was rifled.

"You lied to Beauvais, then?" asked one of Mrs. Stillman's attorneys.

"Yes," said Leigh. "I would have told any lie to get letters from a man of the character of Beauvais."

Many times during the trial of the case Beauvais was active in getting witnesses to testify in his behalf and that of Mrs. Stillman. In Canada only a few weeks ago he corralled witnesses to contradict testimony that he and Mrs. Stillman had been guilty of misconduct.

Green Street Revival

The service last night at the Green Street Methodist church was the best of the meeting. Sixteen were at the altar and 13 made profession. A number of church members who do not feel that they are right with God are seeking the Lord, and getting out of the way of the sinner. This is as it should be as there can not be a widespread revival through a church if the main body of the church is not right or will not get right. Service is announced for 7:30 tonight. A number from Picolet Mills are expected over. Let's have a good crowd to greet them. There will be three services on Sunday at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., a service announced for everyone. At 2:30 p. m. there will be a service for men and boys over 12 years of age. Don't miss this message to men.

J. B. Chick,
Pastor.

NEGRESS RECITES STORY OF KILLING

Greenville, May 12.—After hearing the testimony of seven witnesses during the afternoon, the state rested at 5:15 o'clock in the trial of Lucile Tinsley, 14-year-old negress, charged with the murder of N. B. Hoard, white man. The man was shot in front of the home of the defendant on March 22, dying 24 hours afterwards from the effects of the wound.

The defense opened its case by placing the Tinsley girl on the stand after which the testimony of Mrs. Tom Parks, white woman, residing in the vicinity of the tragedy, was heard. The defendant denied the assertion made by the state accusing her of shooting the man over a small money matter, and declared that it was done in self defense. Hoard had on several occasions previous to the shooting approached and insulted her, making a criminal assault upon her that day, the witness said. After driving him out of her home into the yard Hoard advanced upon her with vile threats, the defendant claimed. Having secured a pistol in the house, she fired blindly, she said. The witness was sure that Hoard had been drinking heavily as it showed by his actions and smelled on his breath.

HARVEY TO BREAK LONG ABSENCE

When Wilson G. Harvey of Charleston seats himself in the chair of the governor of South Carolina, which event will take place in the very near future, he will be the first Charlestonian to warm said chair since 1865 when Judge A. G. Magrath of Charleston was governor.

The resignation of Governor Cooper, who has been appointed on the federal farm loan board to succeed A. F. Lever, automatically promotes Lieutenant Governor Harvey to the office of governor. When he becomes governor, Senator Alan Johnstone of Newberry, president pro tem of the senate, acts as lieutenant governor. When Senator Johnstone becomes lieutenant governor, Newberry county will have no senator in the state senate, which will necessitate the election in Newberry county of a senator.

The fact that a man from Charleston will be in the gubernatorial chair has attracted considerable attention and has served to arouse interest in other cases in which the lieutenant governor has succeeded to the governor's chair.

In January, 1800, Edward Rutledge of Charleston died and Lieut. Gov. John Drayton, also of Charleston, succeeded him. At that time, the legislature met in November, and on the following December, John C. Drayton was elected by the legislature for the full term of office.

Governor Patrick Noble of Abbeville died April 7, 1860, and was succeeded by Lieut. Gov. B. K. Henagan of Marlboro district.

Gov. Wade Hampton resigned the office in February, 1879, in order to take a seat in the United States senate in March of that year. He was succeeded as governor by Lieut. Gov. W. D. Simpson of Laurens.

In September, 1880, Governor Simpson resigned to become chief justice of the supreme court of the state, having been elected to that office by the general assembly. At this time Thomas B. Jeter of Union, who had been president pro tem of the senate, became lieutenant governor by reason of the advancement of Mr. Simpson to the governorship.

Resigned in 1886 to become assistant secretary of the treasury of the United States under Cleveland and John C. Sheppard of Edgfield became governor.

In June, 1889, Gov. W. H. Elieher of Marion died and was succeeded by Lieut. Gov. M. B. McSweeney of Hampton county.

No more lieutenant governors became chief executive until January 14, 1915, when C. L. Blaise resigned and was succeeded by Lieut. Gov. Charles A. Smith of Timmons ville, who held the office just five days until R. I. Manning was inaugurated.

Later she was married in the church. Dickens was also a worshipper there during his boyhood and often attended the services later in life.
